A NOTE FROM GUY & KELLY

Fall... My Favorite Season

Fall is my favorite time of year. If you were raised on the Farms and ranches of the Texas Panhandle, the Fall of the year has undoubtedly left an indelible mark on your heart. It's a time of cooling off from the heat of the summer. A time of harvest. Harvesting the fruits of the labors of the spring and summer. There is something about trotting out horseback to gather and ship cattle off of grass, with a light frost on the ground that stirs in me deeply. There's something about the smell in the air, the condensation of the horse's breath that looks like smoke coming out of their nostrils as they trot along, and the sound of cattle bawling as the drive starts to come together, that gets in your blood as they say.

Fall is a season of preparation for winter which is coming. It is the interim season between the growth of summer and death that comes with winter. Death to flies and weeds and spiders and such. Unfortunately, it's a season of death for your faithful old mare whose 23 years old and can't get through another winter. Spring, Summer, Fall, and Winter represent the rhythms of life. Ecclesiastes 3:3 says, "(There is a) A time to be born,

And a time to die;

A time to plant,

And a time to pluck what is planted;

This thing we call "Life", is in fact, seasonal. And if you have had enough years on this earth to develop a grey hair or two, you will recognize its seasonal pattern. For most people, their "fall" season, when the kids have graduated, married, and started to produce grandkids (one of the greatest blessings in life), and when retirement becomes a tangible thing for the first time... is their sweetest time. But rest assured, winter is coming.

No doubt the natural realm needs winter. If you go to those places on the earth where there is no winter, you find spiders as big as your fist, flies and mosquitos that can carry you off, and forests so thick you have to cut your way through them with a machete. Sort of natural growth out of control.

There are things we all need to let go of in our lives as we make our way through life's seasons. Winter is nature's way of cleansing itself. Fall is a time to reminisce about the past, and to contemplate the future. To prepare to let go of the things that won't make it through the killing frost of winter. And to plan new adventures for the spring. Fall is a time of thankfulness for God's provision in the past seasons, and to develop new dreams for the future. It's a very special time of harvest and of transition.

In Luke 12, Jesus warns us not to worry about life. He said, "And do not seek what you should eat or what you should drink, nor have an anxious mind. For all these things the nations of the world seek after, and your Father knows that you need these things. But seek the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added to you."

As a man who has had several fall seasons under his belt, my advice to others would be, whatever season you're in, be anxious for nothing. Jesus is trustworthy. He will bring you through whatever trial in life you might face (and you will certainly face trials). He will guide you through each season, and when you reach the fall, you can look back and be thankful for His guidance and provision in the past. And you can face the coming winter with confidence because by now, He has proven beyond the shadow of a doubt, that He is Faithful. He said, "I will never leave you or forsake you. and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age." This is the one great truth that you can bet your life on. And that is exactly what He asks us to do.

Have a great Fall!

De Colores,

Guy W.

Well, here we are, the start of Fall and the last walk of the year. The days have begun to get shorter and the nights cooler, but the Love of our God remains the same. Hebrews 13:8 tells us Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and today and Forever. No matter what season we're in, what the path in front of us, or behind us looks like His love for us with never change!

As I look back at the past year, I am in awe of and grateful for the servant's hearts of each and every one of you that have made an impact on someone through New Horizon Emmaus Community. The love that each of you have shown through every aspect of this community is nothing short of amazing and beautiful and I want to personally thank each of you!

Lets Finish this year out strong and get ready for another wonderful year of growing the Kingdom even more next year. I look Forward to seeing each of you at the events for Women's Walk #81 on October 15-16, 2022. Please keep Lay Director Joellen Qualls, Spiritual Director LeeAnn Edwards, the rest of the team and all of the women who will be attending this walk in your prayers.

DeColores!
